Reviews

"Trans/forming Feminisms takes feminist inquiry to a new level, beyond the traditional gender binary that generated feminism itself. Through the prism of trans experience, the clear voices assembled here provide a profound and thought-provoking exploration of gender-related political analysis and social justice initiatives. Highly recommended! I look forward to having this excellent book on my shelf!"
Jamison Green, activist and educator, author of Becoming a Visible Man

"Scott-Dixon's exciting new collection offers a compassionate, timely and deeply personal assortment of essays on trans life-experiences and political aspirations for what might be called a fourth-wave transfeminism."
Sheila L. Cavanagh, Assistant Professor of Sociology, York University

"Feminists have long been struggling with how to best relate to transgendered people — and there have been some rough spots along the way. If you want to better understand some of the practical challenges and tough questions that transgendered people pose for feminist theory, you'll find Trans/forming Feminisms provides varied perspectives and valuable insights." — Aaron H. Devor, Dean, University of Victoria
